

St Albans Web Guide Launched for Under Fives

ToddlersDayOut.co.uk, is a new local web guide aimed at expectant mums and parents of under fives in the St Albans District.

The web guide was conceived though sheer frustration at the lack of centralised information for expectant parents and those with young children. All the classes I found were through word of mouth or frantic 'googling' on the internet whilst my young daughter was asleep. I was getting there slowly but it was all piecemeal, rather time consuming and frankly who has the time to write down all the details for comparison? What I wanted was all the information in one place, this sentiment was echoed by many other local mums and there you have it ToddlersDayOut.co.uk was born!

The website is a free resource for local parents and in addition to listing the local activities and classes that every busy mum needs, the guide also features a what's on page, monthly newsletter, competitions, recipes and a forum for mums to get together, announce their new arrivals and swap parenting tips and experiences.

Our aim now is to make the web site accessible to expectant parents early on. So they are aware of the choice of services, activities and classes available from the start of their journey, through to fully fledged parenthood and the fun and madness that follows.
